

Second Announcement

We warmly invite you to Cracow, one of the most beautiful and popular cities in Europe.

The Organizing Committee is pleased to inform you about the progress in the organisation of the II Interdisciplinary Scientific Conference "Mathematical Transgressions".

Organizer: Institute of Mathematics of the Pedagogical University of Cracow

Time: March 15-19, 2015

Place: Pedagogical University of Cracow, 2 Podchorążych Street

The idea of the conference

The idea of the conference is based on the need for integrating seemingly distant fields of knowledge, related to mathematics education. Therefore, we invite mathematicians, teachers of mathematics, pedagogues, psychologists and philosophers to share their research results and experiences. We believe that looking at the student and his school situation from different points of view will help to develop new approaches towards mathematics education and new teaching methods.

Topics covered by the Conference Sessions include:

1. Didactics of mathematics as a scientific discipline in statu nascendi.
2. Psychology of mathematics. Psychological aspects of learning mathematics.
3. Philosophy of mathematics: Platonism versus problem solving view.
4. The relationship between theory and practice in mathematics education.
5. Underachievement Syndrome in learning mathematics.
6. A trap of didactical contract.
7. Teaching mathematics in 21st century: new methods, new objectives and new content.
